

MAP OF THE DESERT CAMP – NUMBERS CHAPTER 2

The diagram below shows the desert camp with its tribes and the families of Levites on all four sides:

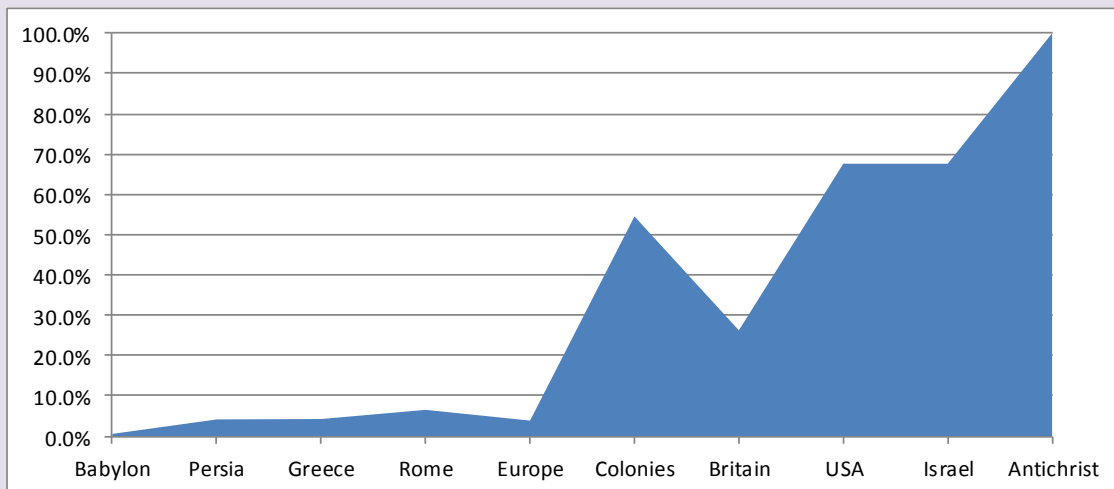

The tribe of Joseph receives two places: Ephraim and Manasseh. The tribe of Levi is assigned the task of carrying the parts of the tabernacle while the people are travelling in the desert. Each side of the desert camp has a lead tribe (Judah, Reuben, Ephraim, and Dan). Each lead tribe has two supporting tribes. Since the time Moses wrote the Law there will be four significant ages of history (four sides of the camp) and each age of history will involve three nations (a lead nation and two secondary nations).

The sons of Levi (Gershon, Kohath, and Merari) were responsible for carrying parts of the tabernacle. Gershon carried the tent, door hangings, and curtains. Kohath carried the holy objects: the ark, the table of showbread, the candlestick, and the altars. Merari carried the pillars, sockets, and bars of the structure. In each age in history there is a spiritual significance related to the meaning of the components of the Tabernacle adjoining it. This is another clue to help identify the age in history and the identity of the world power corresponding to each tribe.

Notes: Power or influence is a somewhat nebulous term. The point is over time control is centralizing. Manassah (first born) comes before Ephraim, but in the march Ephraim is the lead tribe. The United Kingdom precedes America chronologically, but America has the blessing (Jacob's crossed hands).
